[Philadelphia] Tells about the ocean voyage home with Lucretia Mott and Abby Kimber. Praises L. M. and criticises her enemies. Says she is a former schoolmate of Eliza Kirkbride. Complains of the attitude of the Quakers toward the Anti-Slavery cause. Includes poems about J. G. Birney, J. Sturge, the Grimké's and J. Sooble. Discusses the Free Produce meeting. Hopes that "the British India Society is gaining ground with the public." Asks why the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society opposes the Garrisonians. Quotes from the Christian Examiner's review of W. Adam's book.

[Philadelphia] Reminisces about her visit to Ireland. Names the people she met. Comments on the attitudes of J. G. Birney and H. B. Stanton. Quotes limericks about J. Scooble and J. Sturge. Tells of her changed attitude. The members of the Free Produce Society "felt themselves aggrieved by the London Convention." One member thought that if the Duchess of Sutherland had wanted to sit in the Convention, women would have been admitted. Says that the American people are becoming used to the Abolitionists and may become apathetic to the A-S cause. Refers to a letter written to R. D. W. by Mr. & Mrs. J. Mott. To Mrs. Lucretia (Coffin) Mott

«Philadelphia?». The writer begs the addressee to try to make plain to Mrs. M. W. Chapman the Philadelphians' position toward the Nat. Anti-Slavery Standard. The writer believes that the Boston friends' view of them is unjust, since they regard the Philadelphian Society as dependent on the National Society (i.e. American Anti-Slavery Society), "when the true case is that we aid their funds instead of taking from them."

Reminds the addressee of the decision of the Executive Committee that, if arrangements could be made with the Standard, this paper should be sent to subscribers to the Pennsylvania Freeman in place of the Free. The friends in New York favored the idea, since they would gain $400 by the transaction. Regrets the dissension caused by money transactions. A.L.S. 4 p. 7 3/4 x 5 in. Signed with initials. Philadelphia. "The Mtgs. of our Ex. Com. since the mtgs. of the Nat. (American Anti-Slavery) Society have been to me most painful ...." Says they lacked buoyancy. "McKim has come out decidedly for the Nat. Society." The Philadelphia Abolitionists want to sever their connection with the Nat. Anti-Slavery Standard. The writer's Society has not yet discussed the subject of agents, and the writer thinks W. Phillips should speak on the matter instead of S. S. Foster and A. Kelley. Mentions Adin Ballou's description of the new Executive Committee. Says the next meeting of her Society is very important since it must consider the subject of the Society's obligation to circulate the Standard. It takes ten days for a letter from the addressee to reach her. Praises S. H. Gay.

Philadelphia. A new executive committee causes rejoicing. Edward M. Davis has urged the enlargement of the Freeman, its weekly publication, etc. The writer opposes this idea because of the expense involved and because the Standard is a paper of the kind desired. Sydney Howard Gay informed the writer of the need of infusing new vitality into the Standard. The writer asks the addressee as a member of the National Committee to write to the Philadelphia committee about extending the circulation of the Standard. Lucretia Mott is absent in New York; W.L. Philadelphia. Introduces a subject brought before the Executive Committee (of the Philadelphia society): "It is proposed to send an agent to G. Britain & Ireland on behalf of our cause" — not to call large meetings, but, by means of private intercourse, to rouse interest and stimulate giving. Would it be wise to send James Miller McKim? Some are prognosticating a visit to England by James and Lucretia Mott. The writer alludes, first humorously, then seriously to "a manner of conducting a Bazaar" which caused great scandal — apparently the raffling of articles at the Boston fair.

«Park St., Bristol, England. The writer's stay in Dublin was prolonged because of the promised visit of the Estlins. Mary Estlin brought the "Report" to be printed. R. D. Webb will print the Anti-Slavery Advocate and act as its editor temporarily. The writer tells about her tour to the south of Ireland with the Estlins and R. D. Webb. In Cork they visited the Jennings family,—"Miss Isabel given up to F. Douglass & Mesmerism." In Dublin they had met Eliza Wigham and "her no less noble sister Mary Edmondson." The writer comments on the healthy appearance of the poor Irish country people. Now the writer, as the Estlins were in Bristol, warmly appreciates their hospitality and their "Anti-Slavery and other good works."

London. The writer tells about her visit to London with the Estlins and names the Abolitionists she met there; J. M. McKim, G. Thompson, William and Ellen Craft, W. W. Brown, etc. "The papers will tell you of the 'Exeter Hall' meeting & the 'Stowe Soiree' and your practiced judgment will enable you to detect much not discovered by the public eye." Opinion is divided as to how much co-operation can be expected from the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society. Discusses the English attitude toward Slavery. The English "do not like to be disturbed in any of the existing pleasant relations." "...Mr. Estlin has had a paralytic stroke depriving him of the power of motion in his right hand." Philadelphia. The writer regrets that she cannot do more "in the Liberty Bell line." J. M. McKim hopes to procure a copy of the Episcopal Prayer Book. Copies are difficult to obtain, as they were published for the Southern market and are not sold here. Bishop Doane "sanctioned the atrocious mutilation of Scheffer's work." J. M. M. does not believe in the "Kentucky insurrection." Yesterday he reported the arrival of "forty-eight fugitives." Last week Thomas Garrett, president of the Underground Railroad, had to "pass on twenty-one, who came in one company." A friend in Chester was roused at midnight to aid eleven brought by an agent in three wagons. A.L.S. 4 p. 8 1/4 x 5 1/4

.(Philadelphia?). The writer is unable to send "the missing number of 'Sartain' to complete your Vol., but by far the most important of it to us, the 'Year at Ambleside' these sheets will enable you to complete in your mind." The writer has heard from Mrs. Michell that she and Mary Estlin had been at Ambleside, but that Miss Martineau was too feeble to see even Mary. Asks if the "Westminister article" (in the Liberator) is by Miss Martineau. The writer laments that "neither Italian air, nor Swiss mountains" can cure Mary Estlin's "tormenting headaches." Writes of two exhilarating evenings with Wendell Phillips.

May, Samuel, Jr., 1810-1899; minister

To Richard Davis Webb

Leicester, Mass.. The writer discusses the sale of Mr. Webb's Life of John Brown. Says that the country would have restored the Southerners to power and political equality if Pres. Johnson hadn't revealed "their cherished spite and craft." Mentions the restoration of military rule in the South. Says Garrison plans to go to Europe. Mentions a rumor that Robert Purvis, Mary Grew and Wendell Phillips also plan to go. Mrs. May plans to send Whittier's Snowbound and Tent on the Beach to Mr. Webb. Discusses William Hickling Prescott, the historian.

Quincy, Mass.. The writer asks about notices of meetings, the annual report, etc. Heard that Gerrit Smith couldn't come to the Non-Resistance meeting. "I had a very delightful visit the other day from Br. May & Mr. Alcott & [a] very good talk." Alcott told of a grandson of Gen. Nathanael Greene who had become an Abolitionist. Mentions the I. S. Smiths and Anna Thaxter as having embraced Non-Resistance doctrines. Mentions a blunder by William Goodell in his account of the 1837 convention and Lovejoy's murder. Asks what measures have been taken to secure a fair trial of the fugitive slaves at Hartford. [redacted] the Massachusetts Abolitionists should help them out. Dedham, Mass.. The writer has reported to J. A. Collins on the Annual Meeting. Remarks, in reference to the addressee's transmission of documents to England, that the women Abolitionists are "more executive than most of the brethren." Lectured to Quakers at Lynn. Staying at William Bassett's, he saw Abby Kelley and Elizabeth(?) Whittier, sister of J. G. Whittier, "a little Quakeress with tremendous black eyes."

Tells of a session with a phrenologist named Coombs. Mentions a sermon by Theodore Parker, in which it was stated that the Anti-Slavery and Non-Resistance movements were the only manifestations of Christianity without Emersonian or Channingian qualifications.

Boston: The undersigned answer the addressee's letters to Ellis Gray Loring and Maria Weston Chapman of the 22nd and 24th inst. concerning the transaction of the American A.S. Society's affairs. At the Society's annual meeting, a committee of 25, entrusted with its business, considered the removal of the Society's bureau to Boston in view of the fact that the Society's business had been done almost entirely by the addressee and one other member of the committee. Since the secession of 1840, counsel and succor had been sought and received mainly from the Massachusetts friends. The proposition of moving to Boston would probably have been adopted, but for the suggestion made that the Boston friends should refuse to serve under the circumstances. Then the committee unanimously adopted a proposition made by Thomas Earle that a quorum of Boston members of the American Society's committee be nominated for the transaction of the Society's business. This plan seemed to unite all parties for reasons set forth. All members of the Committee of 25 seemed to have understood the intention "with the exception of yourself." The Boston members of the committee entered at once upon their duties, in the discharge of which it seemed necessary to have the Record Book and also to appoint the clerk of the Depository at New York. In respect to the constitutionality of the change, the undersigned are unanimous in the opinion that whether there is a quorum, business

Dedham, Mass.: Writes in humorous vein. "King James Sloan Gibbons sways his lawful scepter unmolested and the baffled conspirators are mourning over the ruin of their hopes." Considers him a new proof of Chancellor Oxenstiern's saying that it is marvelous how little wisdom it takes to govern the world. The writer does not think that Gibbons "had sense enough to show our letters to Mrs. Lydia Maria Child who would have understood them." Thinks that at the next annual meeting "the whole Hopper clique" will be removed and Jones put in to stand for the American Society at New York. Commends the progress of the Hundred Conventions. Charles L. Remond has consented to go into the field at $100 per month. The writer quotes an ironic remark on S.S. Foster and his "courting expenses." Comments on the resiliency of John A. Collins's health.

•Dedham, Mass.. The writer is pretty well satisfied with his article on Garrison and (Daniel) O'Connell. In it he states that O'Connell eulogised Garrison in a public speech in 1840 and that he identified himself publicly with American Abolitionism. Asks if he is mistaken in either point. Playfully threatens that if Anne W. Weston does not treat him well, he will send her back to Weymouth and have little Emma Weston back again. "She is worth all the rest of you put together." Joshua Leavitt said that the writer's statements are "the reverse of the truth." Leavitt intends to make an explanatory statement (in the Lowell Cour. Dedham, Mass.: The writer tells of his efforts to organize an Anti-Slavery convention in Needham. Reports a conversation with Rev. and Mrs. Kimball and their son. Calms their fears that Garrison meant to overthrow the church and abolish the Sabbath. Describes the farm of one Whitaker. James N. Buffum and Henry Clapp told the writer about the Framingham Convention. Writer says he was the first to introduce the Anti-Slavery cause to the town of Needham. Discussed the Liberty Party and the New Organization. A Baptist deacon defended N. Colver, which upset F. Douglass considerably, causing him to admit that there were good men in the Liberty Party. The writer tried to correct his son on this point. Says that Mary Ann Allen, the sister of Mrs. Spear, is engaged to a Dr. Aldrich. Tells of the activities of J. A. Collins. Mentions death of Ingoldsby. "His name was the Rev. R. Harris Barham, Rector of St.Austin's." Outlines the last legend published. Tells of calls made on certain acquaintances in sorrowful circumstances. The writer went to Hingham to see Sydney (Howard Gay) who is recovered, but still weak. The writer hopes the addressee admired his printed letter to (N.P.) Rogers; repeats Oliver Johnson's comment on it. At the First of August meeting here they will have Garrison, Theodore Parker, and expect Captain Jonathan Walker. The procession will move through the street singing anti-slavery songs; Mrs. Follen is drilling the leaders.

«Dedham, Mass.» Sends corrected Report. Considers the misprints, paper, press work, etc. disgraceful. Granam Journal found fault with (the writer's story) "The Haunted Adjutant" because of "his profanity!" Several pious ladies were "shocked to death." At the Board meeting of the Mass. Anti-Slavery Society they voted to employ certain agents. Cyrus M. Burleigh was "laid on the table" till it can be ascertained whether he was "thoroughly cured of Rogerism." At the Board meeting of the American Anti-Slavery Society Sydney (Howard Gay) was asked what he wished to have done to get subscribers. "Father «Seth?» Sprague declined signing the memorial on the ground of his great age & the dis it would cause his sons!" Gives various reports on the Concert of the Rogers Family." Reports a discussion with W. Phillips about S. H. Gay's management of the National Anti-Slavery Standard. First, Phillips proposed to send for Gay at once "... so as to see if we can't get into line with him again." The second idea was to let him have his own way and see how it will work. The writer will spend the night with him in Leicester, and then attend the First of August meeting in Worcester. The writer saw Mrs. Maria (White) Lowell at Nahant, looking beautiful, but ill. To "My Dear Friend" Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman.

Dedham, (Mass.): The writer encloses a letter of S. May Jr. explaining the problem of the disposition of the fund left by Francis Jackson. May recalls that Jackson and C. F. Hovey were opposed to the use of Anti-Slavery funds for the support of the National Anti-Slavery Standard. The objections of both Jackson and Hovey were overruled by Garrison. The addressee claimed that it was not of vital importance "that all of the $10,000 should go to the Freedmen, instead of half," but it would be better if it did. The trustees must present their views on the use of the fund to the Master in Chancery, and Jackson's opinion might affect the Master's decision.

Boston. The writer has made inquiries about a certain Robinson, and concludes that he is a rogue. The letter is mainly concerned with Thomas De Quincey, about whom the writer seeks information. Refers to the addressee's acquaintance with the Lake poets. Supposes him to be the son of the Rev. J.B. Estlin, who was a teacher of Southey and "the fear of paining whom Coleridge said was the chief obstacle he found in the way of his turning Churchman." Remembers having heard that the "De" of De Quincey's name was added by himself. The name of Quincy is very uncommon in the United States and in England; it is not in the [redacted] directory. The Annual New England Convention is now being held. Joseph Barker is here.
